Presentation abstract:

For glass primary packaging containers currently two major trends are to be observed. Continuous raising quality demands regarding dimensional and cosmetic attributes; Vial application being transferred to syringes for ease of use or even the use of autoinjectors or pen systems. To fulfill raising quality demands also the quality of the raw material (glass tubing) is of increasing importance. The presentation will provide an overview how the PharmaPlus quality level applied to the whole glass supply chain leads to a high quality glass container and how customers benefit from this.
